

Where The Rivers Meet The Sky: A Collaborative Approach To Participatory Development (Communication For Development And Social Change)

In the "brilliant novel" (The New York Times) V.S. Naipaul takes us deeply into the life of one man—an Indian who, uprooted by the bloody tides of Third World history, has come to live in an isolated town at the bend of a great river in a newly independent African nation. Naipaul gives us the most convincing and disturbing vision yet of what happens in a place caught between the dangerously alluring modern world and its own tenacious past and traditions.

Proposing a series of innovative steps towards better understanding human lives at the interstices of water and land, this volume includes eight ethnographies from deltas around the world. The book presents 'delta life' with intimate descriptions of the predicaments, imaginations and activities of delta inhabitants. Conceptually, the collection develops 'delta life' as a metaphor for approaching continual and intersecting sociocultural, economic and material transformations more widely. The book revolves around questions of hydrosociality, volatility, rhythms and scale. It thereby yields insights into people's lives that conventional, hydrological approaches to deltas cannot provide.

Allahabad

The Political Ecology of Water

The Place Where the Rivers Meet

(o'-ki-zu Wa-kpa') (to Meet, to Unite) : an Atlas of the Eastern Sioux

Exploring Dynamic Environments where Rivers Meet the Sea

A searing portrait of the racial dynamics that lie inescapably at the heart of our nation, told through the turbulent history of the city of St. Louis. From Lewis and Clark's 1804 expedition to the 2014 uprising in Ferguson, American history has been made in St. Louis. And as Walter Johnson shows in this searing book, the city exemplifies how imperialism, racism, and capitalism have persistently entwined to corrupt the nation's past. St. Louis was a staging post for Indian removal and imperial expansion, and its wealth grew on the backs of its poor black residents, from slavery through redlining and urban renewal. But it was once also America's most radical city, home to anti-capitalist immigrants, the Civil War's first general emancipation, and the nation's first general strike—a legacy of resistance that endures. A blistering history of a city's rise and decline, The Broken Heart of America will forever change how we think about the United States.

This is David Whyte's second book of poetry. Now in its 6th printing.

The Background and Early History of Thief River Falls, Minnesota

Estuaries

All Rivers Flow to the Sea

The City where the Two Rivers Meet

Conclusion of the Storm Tales

A creative, narrative approach to environmental destruction in urban waterscapes, focusing on neighborhood activists who pressure their governments to follow existing law

"McGhee writes confidently as one who remembers the ordinariness of adolescence as well as its angst . . . and compellingly creates a protagonist blindsided by loss." – Publishers Weekly (starred review) For seventeen-year-old Rose, it keeps happening – the car crash. The car crash that put her sister, Ivy, in a coma with only a respirator keeping her alive. While Rose tries to find support from her reticent mother, distraction from the series of boys she meets at the town's gorge at night, and empathy from her neighbor William T., what she really needs must come from within herself – a release of what's been welling up inside. Heartrending, honest, and ultimately hopeful, this is the tale of a teenager overwhelmed by trauma and loss, yet steadied by loyal friendship and the solace of first love.

The Fly Tyers of New Brunswick

The Estuary

Where the Rivers Meet the Sea

Delta Life

The Broken Heart of America

Was one man so important that he could monopolize and continue to control the lives of an entire family even after his death? Is it possible for the actions and words of those that have died to shape the lives of those that remain.

Strange, even deadly, encounters happen when young Tommy Caffrey is left alone with the Mi'kmaq tomahawk he found. Set in a mythical northern Cape Breton town, Where the Rivers Meet is a coming-of-age story told against the backdrop of religious and racial conflict that occurs when gold is discovered on Indian land."

A Collaborative Approach to Participatory Development

Where Many Rivers Meet

St. Louis and the Violent History of the United States

The Story of Auraria, Colorado Through Our Eyes

Where Rivers Meet

Where the Rivers Meet: Wil-Nada Wa-Dihl Aks is a novel set in north-central British Columbia

"The SKYRIVER process - a video communication tool - has received a great deal of recognition for its innovative use of video and film tools to enhance and strengthen citizen participation in the decision-making processes of government. This book offers a review of how the SKYRIVER process evolved and the many lessons learned from its development."--pub. desc.

When Rivers Meet

Where the Rivers Meet, 1957

Where the Rivers Meet

Poems

The Archaeology of Catholme and the Trent-Tame Confluence

'There exists in all of us a song waiting to be sung which is as heart-stopping and vertiginous as the peak of the cathedral. That is the meaning of this quiet city, where the spire soars into the blue, where rivers and stories weave into one another, where lives intertwine.' One quiet evening in Salisbury, the peace is shattered by a serious car crash. At that moment, five lives collide - a flower seller, a schoolboy, an army wife, a security guard, a widower - all facing their own personal disasters. As one of those lives hangs in the balance, the stories of all five unwind, drawn together by connection and coincidence into a web of experiences that perfectly represents the joys and tragedies of small town life.

A collection of poems with a rural theme, arranged by the categories "Days Alone, " "Habitat, " "Woodcutter, " and "Seasons."

The Albemarle-Pamlico Sounds

Rivers of Europe

The Story of the First Trans-African Waterway Expedition

Where Rivers Meet the Sea, Ten Ways to Protect Estuaries

Where Our Rivers Meet the Sea : Christchurch's Avon-Heathcote Estuary and Brooklands Lagoon

Contributed articles on the description of Alahabad, India.

Based on the bestselling book, Rivers of North America, this new guide stands as the only primary source of complete and comparative baseline data on the biological and hydrological characteristics of more than 180 of the highest profile rivers in Europe. With numerous full-color photographs and maps, Rivers of Europe includes conservation information on current patterns of river use and the extent to which human society has exploited and impacted them. Rivers of Europe provides the information ecologists and conservation managers need to better assess their management and meet the EU legislative good governance targets. Coverage on more than 180 European rivers Summarizes biological, ecological and biodiversity characteristics Provides conservation managers with information to resolve conflicts between recreational use of rivers, their use as a water supply, and the need to conserve natural habitats Data on river hydrology (maximum , minimum and average flow rates), seasonal variation in water flow Numerous full-color photographs Information on the underlying geology and its affect on river behaviour

Where the Waters Gather and the Rivers Meet

Wil-Nada Wa-Dihl Aks

Fair Haven

A Pictorial Journey Through Historic Lowell, Michigan

Where the Rivers Meet the Sky

Before reading the enclosed stories, the teacher or parent can ask the children to look and listen for something specific as it pertains to traditional values. At the conclusion of each story, the teacher or parent can have a discussion with the youngster about the importance of these values and how these values can effect their lives. For very young children with short attention spans, the teacher or parent can read each story and point out the lessons to be learned. By doing so, the teacher or parent will help children develop an understanding for the importance of these values. An audio CD of the author reading the enclosed stores and poems is available for this book. Consult our websight at: www.AKPRECORDS.COM e-mail us at: artiek@adelphia.net Or write for a price list to: AKP Inc. * PO Box 4008 * Deerfield Beach, Fl. 33442

This book is the story of an area of landscape in the English Midlands from earliest prehistory to around AD 900. Although it looks like a typical rural landscape, archaeological research, much of it in advance of quarrying, has revealed that this area has a long and remarkable history of occupation stretching back to the Ice Age. In particular at Catholme the project has revealed spectacular monuments from the Neolithic and Bronze Age (including a 'woodhenge-type' monument, a 'sunburst' monument and a cursus) that represent a regional expression of the monumental traditions of the age of Stonehenge.

A Novel

Five Rivers Met on a Wooded Plain

Findrinny Fair

Where Rivers Meet the Sea

Pipelines, Participatory Resource Management, and Aboriginal-State Relations in the Northwest Territories

Signet lives by a quay, where rivers meet to go out to the sea. Her best friend is a seabird who she once rescued from plastic waste. They play through Spring, Summer and Autumn. They swap friendship bands. Then as Winter arrives, Keekee the seabird has to make his usual trip to a warmer climate. The picture book gives opportunities to discuss the seasons, friendships, wild birds, litter and recycling.

"Revenge is a dish best served cold." Who would understand this better than the ancestors of the Nyishi tribe of Arunachal Pradesh who lived in a vicious circle of revenge. A slave falls in love with the favourite wife of his old master. A pair of hornbills courts each other and seeks a nesting place on a tree deep inside the canopies of a tropical forest. A shaman who has been bested in love by a village bumpkin let loses a bloodbath out of spite for his rival in love. A young man taking advantage of the development process with the coming of the Hariangs (non-tribals) wants to embrace modern life after availing good educational opportunities. Their lives get intertwined in the version of the story narrated by one of them; where the quotidian and bizarre, natural and supernatural are blended together in this surreal and cautionary tale of love, longing and existential angst under a changed circumstance of the tribe's history.

A Tibetan Refugee Community's Struggle to Survive in the High Mountains of Nepal

A Bend in the River

Oil and gas companies now recognize that industrial projects in the Canadian North can only succeed if Aboriginal communities are involved in decision-making processes. Where the Rivers Meet is an ethnographic account of Sahtu Dene involvement in the environmental assessment of the Mackenzie Gas Project, a massive pipeline that, if completed, would have unprecedented effects on Aboriginal communities in the North. The book reveals that while there has been some progress in establishing avenues for Dene participation in decision making, the ultimate assessment of such projects remains rooted in non-local beliefs about the nature of the environment, the commodification of land, and the inevitability of a hydrocarbon-based economy.